Thrillers & Suspense

In these closely-related genres, a sense of menace permeates the books from early on, with this unease building to a climax. Action drives the stories and dangers beset the characters at every turn. In Suspense, we see the action from both the hero's and the villain's points of view, so we know more than the hero. In Thrillers we become insiders — spies, doctors, scientists, lawyers — as the story is worked out against the background of the protagonist's profession
